Private VS Public Transportation

Private Transportation Companies
- Located throughout the state
- Most have accessible vehicles
- Few restrictions on when/where/time
- Often more costly than public transportation.
Private VS Public Transportation

Public Transportation

• Located throughout the state
• Accessible vehicles
• Some restrictions on when/where/time
• Generally less costly than private transportation.

Advantages to the Public Fixed Route Transportation

• Each must comply with ADA requirements, by providing accessible transportation
• Hours of Service and Service Area of Paratransit Service must be the same as the Fixed Route
• No limits on the number of trips you take or for the trip purpose
All 67 Counties in Florida have Accessible Public Transportation

- Access transportation services thru the Community Transportation Coordinator (CTC)
- Must complete an eligibility application
- Service may be limited in hours and type of trips.
Government Subsidized Transportation in Florida

- Government programs provide transportation services to people who qualify for them. None of these programs are an entitlement. An individual must qualify on the basis of either income, age, disability, or employment status, be unable to use the fixed route public transit (bus) system in the community, and have no other means of transportation available to them.
Government Subsidized Transportation in Florida

- Fixed Route/Fixed Schedule/Deviated Public Transit (i.e. city bus). This service is heavily subsidized by both federal and local government funding. Passengers pay a nominal fare that is established by the local government. Typically, individuals with disabilities may ride at a reduced fare. Most systems offer bus pass programs – e.g., for unlimited trips by the day, week, or month. There are no eligibility requirements. Not all of the fixed route/fixed schedule public transit systems’ routes serve the entire county in which it operates. Deviated systems are similar to fixed route/fixed schedule public transit, but on a smaller scale.

- ADA (American with Disabilities Act) Complementary Paratransit. This is a “paratransit” (door to door) service that is required by law to be provided by all fixed route/fixed schedule public transit companies. This purpose of this service is to make public transit “equally accessible” to people with disabilities. To be eligible, an individual must have a disability and be unable to use and maneuver the fixed bus route system and the individual’s home must be within ¾ mile of an established bus route. The rider must pay a nominal fare, which cannot be more than twice the fare charged to ride the fixed route public bus for the same trip. It is in the best interest of both the rider and the taxpayer for the rider to be able to use the fixed route system to the greatest extent possible.
• Transportation Disadvantaged Program. This is a “paratransit” (door-to-door) service that is subsidized by federal, state, and local government. The purpose of this program is to coordinate trips of all riders to the greatest extent possible in order to be as cost efficient as possible. Trips must be scheduled in advance to enable the CTC to schedule vehicles and routes. To be eligible, an individual must have a disability, must be unable to drive him or herself because of age or income, or must be unable to purchase private transportation (e.g., taxi services) because of income. Because of limited funding, the government board of each CTC establishes priorities for trip purposes. Typically trips are provided for non-emergency medical, nutritional, educational, and employment before social or recreational trips can be provided.

- Medicaid. This program is a federal and state funded insurance program to provide health coverage for selected categories of people with low income. Medicaid will pay for a Medicaid-eligible individual's transportation to and from a medical service that is authorized by Florida's Medicaid State Plan, provided the individual has no other means of transportation (i.e., self, fixed route, friend, relative). In order to provide "Medicaid Transportation", Medicaid contracts with the Commission for the Transportation Disadvantaged, who in turns contracts with a single transportation entity in each county. In most counties, that provider is the CTC. Medicaid requires its transportation providers to first confirm the rider's Medicaid eligibility, and then to coordinate, provide or arrange the most economical and appropriate mode transportation available. This includes the purchase of bus tickets or bus passes and the provision of paratransit services.
Government Subsidized Transportation in Florida

- State Government Program/Services. Pursuant to Chapter 427, Florida Statutes, whenever state government funds (including federal funds that are administered by state government) are to be spent to transport individuals being served by a state program, that transportation must be purchased from the local CTC, to enable the CTC to coordinate such trips with all other trips it provides, thus ensuring cost-efficient use of government funds. There are special circumstances when transportation authorized under a government program may be purchased from other entities. These exceptions are established in Rule 41-2, Florida Administrative Code, and should be known to the administrators of each state program. Before such funds can be spent, payment for an individual’s transportation must be authorized by the government agency.
WHO ARE THE TRANSPORTATION DISADVANTAGED?

Those persons who because of physical or mental disability, income status, or age are unable to transport themselves or to purchase transportation and are, therefore, dependent upon others to obtain access to health care, employment, education, shopping, social activities, or children who are disabled or high risk or at risk.
Florida’s Coordinated Transportation

“the arrangement for the provision of transportation services to the transportation disadvantaged in a manner that is cost-effective, efficient and reduces fragmentation and duplication of services.”
